on the title-page. It surpasses 'Stuart of Dunleath' in strength, delicacy, and finish."-Athenæum. "In the pages of 'Lost and Saved' the reader will find the rare poetic charm, the graceful and uneraggerated pathos, the keen artistic love of nature, the merring good taste, and the true womanly tenderness which made him linger over the pages of 'Stuart of Dunleath.' But beyond all these things there are in Lost and Saved 'evidences of strong purpose and proofs of matured and consummate ability which place it in a far different category. In this remarkable work Mrs. Norton brings the powers of her mind tothe enforcement and the illustration of home truths which ought to be startling, as they are undeniable, which society does not deny and will not redress. There is no human element wanting to the interest and pathos of this fine work."—Morning Post. Hurst and Blackett, publishers, 13. Great Marlborough-street.
